STARTING A CONSUMERS' LEAGUE Sacramento offers a cure for the high price of living through organization of a "Pacific Coast Normal Price League" Invitations have been extended to the leading eities of California which fillers had been taken was; The Raisigh is armed with 7.5 Nevada and Arizona to send deegates to a meeting to be held found: next week at which the subject under discussion will be the bost way of organizing a passive boy of all high preed commodities entering into daily consumption. The idea is excellent and all that requires to carry it through to a successful end is low to carry on with a view to cotting down the consumption of foodstuffs and articles entering into the life of the plans where the prices have passed on of reach of the ordinary Juyer. A few thrifty housekeepers have met the means of making a fixed income adequate to daily a mands by individually retreaching in the natural way of refe ming from buying in all makes where prices of every day wear and eats have gone beyond endurance. Many honsewives have succeeded in their own families in stretching the usefulness of a dollar and it is argued that if a few shrewd buyers can effect a saving in this manner the conomies can be carried out in a whilesale form through organizations that will enforce the principle, in every community. If your are 80 cents a dozen and butter to cents a pound, the theory is that by uniling together buyers may do without them, and being about a reduction by following the laws of supply and demand The principle was applied last year in a local way in Philadelphia through the woman's clubs agreeing not to buy certain commodities above stated prices. What's more, the women boulled together and stuck together so cosely that they won their fight Prices toppled; jobbers found teemselves loaded with unsalald goods and retailers were compelled to refrain from adding stock that could not be disposed of. The denumd fell off and the profiteers saw their undoing unless they releated and pulled down the cost cards which were delerring buyers from entering their stores. Perishable goods rotted in the bins, clerks stood idle while buyers held aloof. In less than a week the decision was rember and the women resumed their wonted purchases at what they considered reasonable prices. They won, prices came back and trading was resumed.

The boycott proved a more trenchant weapon than all the previous arguments against high proces and the modest housewife war her way without resorting to any militancy. If potatoes are selling at six cents a pound and the farmer is selling them to first hands at three cents, then it was assumed that spinds vere in the class of luxuries which could be dispensed with. The principle was not that of co-operative buying, which is almost impossible through the existence of selling organizations, but rather co-operation in not buying, which brought results.
